Incest survivor Stress-filled single mother's life finds new joy, hope in 1992

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Shawne--an attractive blonde Wayne County mother of two--could have fallen through any of the multiple cracks in the social safety-net many times in her young life.

- She was the product of an alcoholic family.
- She was a victim of incest.
- She was a chronic overreacher as a child.
- She wrote God off at age 14.

• Later at the age of 18, she married an alcoholic.

Through it all there were long years of isolation, first as the child in a single-parent home and later as a single parent herself.

Shawne could have fallen through. But she has refused to become "just another one of America's negative statistics."

Instead she looks forward to 1992 with a new found joy and hope.

The 27-year-old single-parent will graduate with a 4.0 average this April from a Michigan university with a major in journalism and telecommunications and have her own cable TV program.

She already has won numerous journalism awards including one for her senior thesis--a complex report on how the media covered the Vietnam war.

It has been a long tough transition for the bright young mother. To beat the odds, when many around her were collapsing, it took a lot of personal grit and the fellowship of several area support groups--including the Romulus Help Center.

As a child of an alcoholic father, who abandoned the family when she was only 9 months old, she began her first periods of isolation. Her family during those early years consisted only of her mother and a sister.

She calls her mother "a religious fanatic, who wouldn't let me cry or feel any emotions. I was told to turn all my hurts over to God--not feel them, share them or cope with them."

Later after her mother remarried, Shawne became an incest victim.

Like most incest victims, her mother refused to believe that Shawne was being sexu-

I couldn't talk for six months - I was in such pain. I felt if I opened my mouth, I would cry (and I had been trained as a child not to cry).

- Shawne

ally abused by her new husband.

Shawne, already lonely and isolated, felt devastated. She rebelled. "I wrote God off at 14."

Food became both her best friend and religion and soon she weighed 230 pounds.

She feels that much of her childhood was buried in the maze of body fat, silence and emotional denial.

She slimmed down, met a man when she was 18 and married him three years later. He was an alcoholic...and she divorced him three years later, despite the wealth and fashionable suburban home he afforded her.

"My husband was already into his fourth drunk driving charge, when we divorced" she said.

For the past four years, Shawne has been on the trail to recovery.

First she sought counseling. Then she began attending meetings of Adult Children of Alcoholics--upon the encouragement of her therapist.

Minutes after sitting down at her first ACA meeting, she realized "Finally, I've come home."

Yet despite the warmth exhibited by the group, Shawne said "I couldn't talk for six months--I was in such pain. I felt if I opened my mouth, I would cry (and I had been trained as a child not to cry)."

After months of attending such meetings, "the group helped me melt...my defenses eroded, my mask began to fall off."

She also attended Survivors of Incest Anonymous meetings and received valuable help from a therapist at the Romulus Help Center.

"These people are now my extended family--the kin I turn to when pressures are heavy," she said.

"After four years, I finally am beginning to feel the loss of my birth dad," she said. (While her dad is still alive, the healing process is "extremely painful", as are renewing ties with other family members).

"I find it a miracle to feel pain--but use it to focus on renewal. It opened a feeling of great joy last Christmas (1990)."

"It was magical--about midnight a pounding erupted at my door and when I opened the door I found a doll and a flannel nightgown. The doll's name is "Virginia" (named after the girl, who sparked the editorial "Yes, Virginia There Is A Santa Claus" many years ago.

"Like Virginia, I too now believe in Santa Claus," she said, "and because of these people, I'm reclaiming my lost childhood."

In addition "I have reopened communication with God." Shawne does it through her private, but heavy prayer life and meditation, rather than church involvement at this stage of her recovery.

"For the first time, I feel joy when I talk to God. I know he's listening."

As a parent of a young son and daughter, I realize "to be a healthy parent, I need to be honest--not perfect."

Having given up life in a massive house and now content to live in a small box-like apartment, I knew that the greatest gift I could give my children this Christmas "was me." Because of that "they had a ball."

In an effort to break her family cycle of alcoholism and non-communication (which reaches back to the days of her grandparents), Shawne said "I want my children to feel life. I won't tell them to stop crying. I don't want to murder their soul."

Shawne smiles wistfully. "Children need to be listened to. Thank God--I'm a great listener too."

Long distance walker finds health on track

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

As a child, 71-year-old Mildred Qualls walked to school, church and any other place not on her parents' Illinois farm.

"We only had one horse," the spry Romulus senior citizen declares, "and he was strictly for work, not for personal riding or pulling carriages."

Today as a resident of the Romulus Towers (a senior citizen housing site), Qualls not only walks the quarter-mile track in Senior Park 10 times each morning, she does a repeat walk-athon again in the afternoon.

Upon returning home each day she ignores the building elevator and hikes up five flights of stairs--because "it's good for me."

Qualls is quite proud of her family's heritage of health. "I grew up in a family of 10 and nine of us are still alive."

Unlike most seniors, Qualls enjoys the cold weather and is happy that the track is cleared of snow regularly by recreation department employees.

Because of her vigor and pace, Qualls usually walks alone. To keep her mind as active as her body, Qualls carries 3-by-5 inch cards bearing handwritten Psalms.

"I've tried to memorize many of the shorter Psalms.

Arthritis continues to bother me but I refuse to be afraid or let the displeasure get me down. My walking makes my doctor happy and keeps me healthy.

- Mildred Qualls

I've been a Sunday School teacher for 40 years--so I have to try to stay ahead of my students. They are getting smarter and smarter--thus I need to try to memorize the Psalms. But I find it takes longer to do as my mind is not as sharp today, as it was when I was a teenager," she said.

When she isn't memorizing scriptures, Qualls said, she is listening to tape recordings of sermons from her former church--St. Stephens Lutheran Church of Detroit.

She was a member there for 37 years, until her family talked her into moving out of Detroit following a pair of burglaries in her small house.

"I loved that house and church, but agreed times had changed and I needed to seek safer quarters," she said.

Switching to Romulus was difficult at first, because she has always been a very sociable person and she knew few people in the city.

But her friendships have grown as she now attends St. Michael Lutheran Church in Wayne and spends a great many hours socializing with other seniors in the community portion of the 126-unit senior housing project.

She and her husband, John, a General Motors researcher, raised three children (two daughters and a son).

When he died 23 years ago, Qualls was forced to seek a job for the first time in her life. She quickly obtained an office job and "changed jobs often--since I was always trying to better myself while raising the children."

Having read 270 paperbacks since arriving in Romulus, Qualls spends some of time sewing for her grandchildren, when she isn't brightening up other seniors' lives downstairs.

"I don't walk in the rain"--since carrying an umbrella cramps her style and aggravates her arthritis.

"Arthritis continues to bother me (her shoulders, hands, knees, etc.), "but I refuse to be afraid or let the displeasure get me down."

Qualls said, "my walking makes my doctor happy" and "keeps me healthy."

And that's the most important thing for Qualls, for as she said, "I want to see my grandchildren grow up."

Mildred Qualls began walking about 70 years ago. She still outpaces her peers today in Romulus--with or without her scriptures. ANP photo by Deanne DeYonker/staff photographer

Murder suspect arrested

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Tommy Collins, 21, a former fast food restaurant worker from Romulus, was charged Friday with the stabbing deaths of a Taylor mother and daughter last May.

Detective Mark Tonge charged Collins with the first-degree felony murder count. He is incarcerated without bail at the Wayne County Jail.

The victims were Carlyn Reno, 46, and her daughter, Robin, 21. Both died after being repeatedly stabbed in the head, neck and back.

Carlyn's body was found in her bedroom and her daughter was discovered in the living room.

Kenneth Reno, husband and father of the victims, reportedly found the bodies less than an hour after they died, police said. He initially was charged with the murders, but as police probed the killings further they found he was not the assailant. He was released from custody in October.

When asked if Collins acted alone in the murders, Taylor police would only say "the investigation is continuing."

City sells 1977 mini-pumper, 7 police cars

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

A 1977 Pierce No. 324 mini-pumper was sold by members of the Romulus City Council last week for $12,500 to Halt Fire Inc. of Northville.

Fire Chief William Green-slait said proceeds from the sale would be used to buy a new extended cab pick-up (4 by 4) truck, which would be used by the Fire Department Inspection Division.

The fire inspector's current vehicle would be relinquished to the Department of Public Works to be either sold, auctioned or used in some minor capacity.

The accepted bid was the highest of three received. Greenslait told council members that the unit was no longer being used.

Council members also approved the sale of seven police cars to Welcome Motors of Chicago, IL, for $36,000.

Department of Public Works Director James J. Panos informed Mayor Beverly McAnally that "historically we derive $1,000 to $2,000 apiece for such vehicles at police auctions. Three 1989 Chevrolet Caprices were sold for $4,000 each and four 1990 models were sold for $6,000 each.

Council members also approved a one-year contract for typewriter maintenance to Wyandotte Business Machines in the amount of $2,397.

Free eye exams offered to needy

By KEVIN LITWIN
ANP Staff Writer

Free eye exams for those who fall within certain income ranges and do not have vision care insurance will be offered throughout Michigan during Save Your Vision Week March 1-7.

This is the second year for Vision USA, a public service project sponsored by the Michigan and American Optometric Associations.

"More than 8,000 optometrists nationwide provided nearly 40,000 free eye exams during last year's successful Vision USA program," said William Dansby, executive vice president of the Michigan Optometric Association. "Ninety percent of the people examined had eye health or vision problems, and 15 percent had never received an eye exam."

According to Dansby, to qualify for care under Vision USA, a person must be working at least part time and have no vision care insurance. A person also must not have had eye care within the past year, and be able to meet the following income requirements:

- A monthly income of $600 or less, or annual income of $7,000 or less for a household

- of one.
- A monthly income of $765 or less, or annual income of $9,000 or less for a family of two.
- A monthly income of $1,025 or less, or annual income of $12,000 or less for a household of three.
- A monthly income of $1,275 or less, or annual income of $15,000 or less for a family of four.
- A monthly income of $1,700 or less, or annual income of $20,000 or less for a family of five or more.

"The willingness of these optometrists to devote time and resources to helping the underprivileged is commendable," Dansby said. "Proper eye care is an important part of maintaining overall health, and I urge all who are interested to check their eligibility for the program."

Area residents who are interested in the free eye exam program must call 1-800-766-4466 in January to be screened for eligibility and be referred to a participating optometrist. The phone number will not be activated until Jan. 1, and will be effective only during the month of January.

For more information about Vision USA call William Dansby at 517-482-0616.

HEADACHE SUFFERERS TAKE NOTE

Many people needlessly endure years of suffering with headaches simply because they haven't tried chiropractic care!

Headaches often stem either from misalignment of one or more vertebrae in the upper neck or from restricted range of motion of the vertebrae.

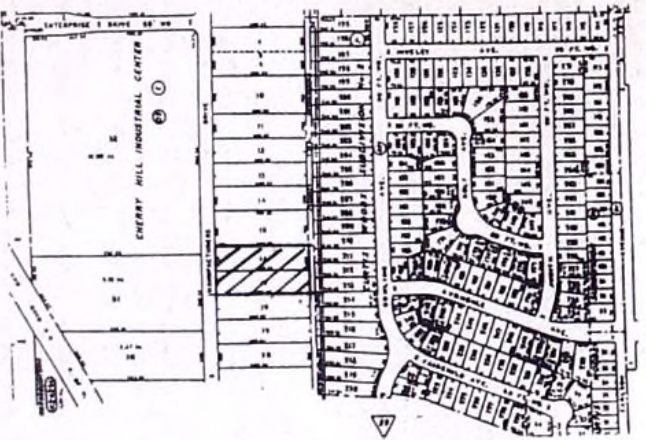

Undue stress on the nerves, ligaments or muscles from either improper posture, physical strains, poor sleeping positions or similar causes may create headaches ranging from mild annoyances to full blown migraines.

By correcting the abnormal alignment of the vertebrae, the chiropractor gets to the root of the problem to provide lasting relief.

Local community leaders voice predictions for 1992

1992

Westland City Council President
Thomas Brown

Westland City Council President Thomas Brown is concerned that the city will have to reduce services do to a lack of surplus funds.

Brown predicts some city employees recently hired will have to be laid off. He bases this prediction on news from the city auditors Plante-Moran that the city will deplete all of the unallocated funds by the end of next year.

Brown is also concerned about the loss of the Nankin Transit bus service for the elderly and the handicapped. The Westland City Council offered to lend the funding necessary to keep the service operating for another six months to the other four communities that utilize the service. Brown hopes that officials from all five communities will be able to find an alternative method of funding the financially-troubled bus service before next summer.

Romulus Mayor
Beverly McAnally

Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally hopes homeowners and residents will be able to remain in control of their homes and be able to pay their taxes during difficult economic times.

She also would like to see high level of city services provided to the community.

McAnally wants to continue working closely with the hotel industry to stimulate use of the facilities in Romulus.

McAnally wants to assist the 12 percent or more unemployed residents gain new long-term jobs.

Wayne Mayor
Ken Warfield

"First, I see myself in a leadership role for 1992. My goal is to make things happen that may not happen in this community which goes along with my personal life's practices.

I intend to not only make the good things happen, but I also would like to prevent the bad things from happening.

Hopefully, I intend to move the community in a more positive direction. I intend on trying to provide a vision as to where we can go to make the community the way we want to see it in Wayne.

I hope everyone has a safe and healthy holiday."

Westland Mayor
Robert Thomas

Westland Mayor Robert Thomas predicts his city will see another good year.

"I think we'll have another good year, the same as we had this year," Thomas said. "We will continue to bring more basic services to the city."

Financially Thomas said the city is in "great shape." He also doesn't believe the current recession will impact Westland.

One area that does concern the mayor is the sale of Westland Center. Thomas hopes the current owners Equitable Real Estate Developers will be able to convince officials from Hudson's to sign a new lease. If they don't, he is fearful that Hudson's will leave Westland for a neighboring community.

"I'm fearful if it doesn't happen in Westland, it will happen somewhere else," Thomas said.

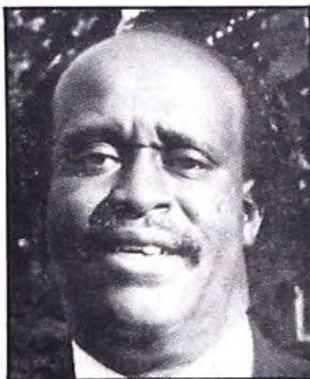

Plymouth-Canton Schools Superintendent
Dr. John M. Hoben

"I can't really think of any personal goals. Oh, here's one. I want to lose 20 pounds. Those are doctor's orders.

"I want to continue to make the Plymouth-Canton community school district a leader among excellent schools, to continue to make the district fiscally responsible, and have it be the best educational institution it can be.

"I want to move students toward greater problem solving, critical thinking, and developing reference and study skills. It is my goal to work diligently with our staff and our board of education to accomplish these outcomes."

Inkster School Board President
John T. Rucker Jr.

"One of our dreams is slowly becoming a reality. Thanks to a $11 million loan from the state and voter approval to borrow the money, the Inkster School District has launched its most aggressive construction programs in recent history," said John T. Rucker, president of the Inkster School Board.

"We are building an education complex that will house an elementary school and administrative offices. The monies from the bonds will allow us to make necessary repairs to existing facilities.

"But, looking down the road, one of our goals is to build a new high school," Rucker said. "If that happens, the citizens of Inkster will have the tools to educate our children."

Romulus Councilmember
Ellis Pennington

Romulus City Councilmember Ellis Pennington hopes city officials will be able to convince Wayne County officials that they have a responsibility to subsidize Romulus for lost city tax rates, as more city land is occupied by the Metro Airport expansion.

He wants to see more aid for those homeowners impacted by the planned interchange development. Pennington believes residents should gain an announced figure for their property, so that they can attempt immediately to find new homesites within the city.

Another goal Pennington has for 1992 is to lower the city real estate owners' property taxes.

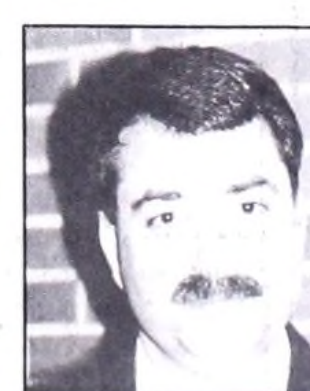

Westwood School Board President
John DeGhetto

"To reach any goal, we have to communicate," said John DeGhetto, who is serving his third term as president of the Westwood school board. "This board has had problems doing that at times. However, to accomplish this goal, I feel we will have hurdled a major obstacle and accomplished something that we have not been able to do in the past.

"You know when you have seven different personalities, you're bound to have clashes. I feel we all recognize that we are there for one purpose—to provide our kids with the best education possible. But, to reach that goal, we're taking different roads.

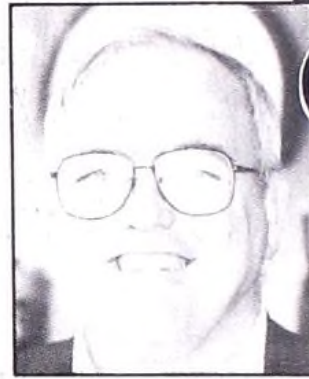

"And may I add, there is yet one more goal we, as a board, have set our sights upon. That goal is see the improvement of the MEAP (Michigan Educational Assessment Program) scores for all of our school children."

Canton Township Director of Public Safety
John Santomauro

"I don't have that many personal goals because I'm already fortunate to have a good wife and good children, plus I hold this position. Perhaps the one thing I would strive for would be to reduce my 8-minute mile down to 7 minutes.

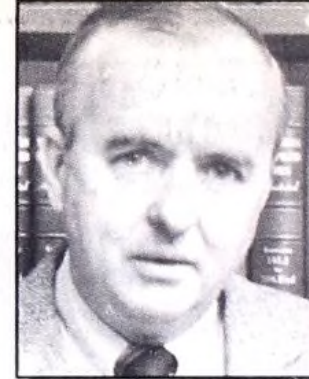

"My objective in 1992 would be to see this organization continue to evolve, and for me to grow with it. I don't ever want to be satisfied with our progress because I don't think you ever reach the point where you stop growing."

Wayne Deputy Police Director
John Colligan

"My personal goal will be to help my three daughters in pursuit of their education, and help guide them. I have two in college.

"My other goal would be to continue to provide the highest level of service in terms of law enforcement in the Wayne community."

Wayne Councilman
Pat Norton

"I will maintain a positive attitude toward life regardless of success or failure and realize that anyone who lives life to the fullest must live up to their responsibilities."

Canton Township Supervisor
Thomas Yack

"I guess my personal goal for 1992 would be to spend more quality time with my kids." I have three professional goals for 1992. The first would be to continue the process of the last three years of putting together a team to share the same goals and aspirations for the community we serve.

"The second goal is to continue building a sense of unity in the community. I still remember when we had a Desert Storm rally in Canton, and approximately 4,000 people showed up at the spur of the moment.

"My third goal would be to get re-elected. Hey, I might as well be honest about it."

Romulus Treasurer
James L. Napierkowski

Romulus Treasurer James L. Napierkowski listed the creation of a new investment policy as the main goal for Romulus in 1992.

The investment policy will clarify investments that can be made with city funds and has been recommended by the Municipal Treasurers Association of the U.S. and Canada, according to Napierkowski.

"These investments must offer no risk to the principal, while allowing the greatest return possible," Napierkowski said.

Resident sings for president

A Wayne Memorial High School graduate will be performing for President George Bush and First Lady Barbara in a New York production at the Opera House of the Kennedy Center New Year's Eve.

Gregory Jbara will reunite with the original Washington, D.C. Forever Plaid cast for one final performance.

On Jan. 1, 1992, the same cast will fly to Miami, Fla. for a two-month engagement at the Coconut Grove Playhouse. In March, they are off to Japan for a tour of the major cities. Jbara will rejoin the New York production following the tour.

Last summer, Jbara and the D.C. "Plaids" were honored to have the Bush family in the audience at the Historic Ford's Theater. The First Family visited backstage after the show along with their guests the secretary of education and his wife.

After seeing the show, President Bush invited the cast to entertain at the annual White House Cabinet dinner. The evening of the White House performance, Mrs. Bush invited the cast to their home in Kennebunkport, Maine to entertain the visiting British Prime Minister John Major and his family.

Written, directed and staged by Tony Award nominee Stuart Ross, Forever Plaid goes back to the days when the guys next door practiced their precision moves to their four-part vocals in their parent's basements.

Through the power of harmony and the expanding holes in the ozone layer in conjunction with the positions of the planets and all that Astro-technical stuff, Sparky, Jinx, Frankie and Smudge (who make up the singing group called Forever Plaid) perform the concert they never had a chance to give 30 years ago.

Featuring Gregory Jbara as Smudge, Forever Plaid brings such dreamy hits as "Love is a Many Splendored Thing," "Three Coins in a Fountain," and tributes to Perry Como and the Ed Sullivan show.

Wayne Memorial High School graduate Gregory Jbara performed yesterday in a New York production at the Opera House at Kennedy Center for President George Bush and First Lady Barbara Bush. Jbara and other performers in his group also performed earlier this year for the president and Mrs. Bush. Jbara and his group from left to right included Neil Nash, Paul Binotto, Barbara Bush, George Bush, Jbara, and Michael Winther.

Gregory Jbara will reunite with the original Washington, D.C. Forever Plaid cast for one final performance.

Jbara attended the University of Michigan for two years and then went on to New York to complete his bachelor of fine arts at the Juilliard School.

Jbara has appeared on the New York stage in the musical comedies Private on Parade with Jim Dale and Have I Got A Girl For You; the Broadway productions of Born Yesterday starring Ed Asner and Madeline Kahn, Serious Money, and the national tour of the London hit musical CHES.

His television and film appearances include: Newhart, Live from Lincoln Center, Juliard at 80, The House on Carroll Street, Crocodile Dundee II Arthur Hillier's soon-to-be-released Married to It.

Audiences have also seen him and heard his voice on hundreds of television and radio commercials including the voice of the opera singer penguin for N'ICE Throat Lozenges.

Suburban Living Magazine will be conducting an exclusive interview with Jbara in early 1992.

Council to improve theatre

By MARGO DEWEY
ANP Feature Editor

Wayne councilmembers will be considering the approval of funds for renovating theatre three at the State Wayne Theatre.

The goal is to convert the existing theatre shell to an operating motion picture auditorium and live arts presentation theatre, according to Assistant City Manager John Zech.

"Once this side of the theatre is completed, proceeds from this section will go toward renovating the Palace Theatre," Zech said.

The work will include construction of a new stage for live arts presentations, stage and spot lighting, two new dressing room areas, carpeting and new sound drapes.

Theatres one and two have been open for business since the grand opening of the State Wayne Theatre Nov. 1. Bill Clark, president of Quadrants Inc., is running the establishment.

The renovation process for the entire theatre began last summer. The theatre consists of three auditoriums. The first has 540 seats, the second has 270 seats and the third has 204 seats.

Wayne councilmembers approved the purchase of the State Wayne Theatre for $316,970. The purchase was funded through Downtown Development Authority funds.

The main goal for the State Wayne Theatre is to offer family entertainment at a moderate price. Ticket prices are $2 for adult and $1 for seniors and children.

Now showing at the State Wayne Theatre Dec. 26 to Dec. 31 are: Dr. Doolittle and All Dogs Go To Heaven.

The theatre is located at 35310 Michigan Ave.

DO YOU KNOW...?

Travelers to Hungary holding a U.S. passport no longer require a visa for stays of up to 90 days. Accommodations are excellent and there are many deluxe hotels in Budapest as well as world class spas in and around the capital.

If you're planning a trip to the Caribbean and aren't staying at an all-inclusive resort, you might want to consider adding a meal plan. MAP gives you breakfast and dinner for a set amount which is usually considerably less than paying as you go.

A honeymoon is the most important trip you'll ever take and special packages are available to many places. If you aren't interested in the extra features (which are added to the cost), you might want to compare prices and let us help you make the decision based upon true value received.

Vans and station wagons are available at some car rental locations but are limited in number and should be reserved far in advance. Drop off charges usually apply for these vehicles and can add a significant amount to your total bill, so you might want to plan your itinerary with this in mind.

There's no additional charge for our service (except on rare occasions which are always spelled out in advance) and we can often save you money through our knowledge of special fares. We'll find the best values on all airlines, tours and cruises, so why not try us next time you travel and see for yourself?

Investors to receive tax credit

Businesses that make investments in manufacturing and in equipment would receive a tax credit if a bill introduced last week by U.S. Rep. Sander Levin is approved.

Levin said the new tax incentive will help jump-start the economy.

The Investment Tax Credit for New Manufacturing Equipment Act of 1991 would provide a 7.5 percent tax credit for companies that invest in plant and equipment "integral to the manufacture of tangible property."

The credit targets investments that directly aid the manufacturing process, and applies only to new investments that go beyond what a company would have undertaken as a regular course of action.

He added that the "goal is to reverse the trend of under-investment in manufacturing equipment during the 1980s and close the gap in capital stock between the U.S. and our major trading partners.

The bill will be referred to the House Ways and Means Committee.

Wife wants advice on married life

Dear Elizabeth:
My birth date is Oct. 22, 1921. My husband's birth date is March 29, 1917. We were married on Sept. 6, 1947. What do you see for us in the near future, such as 1991.

Thank you, J.K. in Inkster

Dear J.K.:
You are a very loving and giving individual. This year I see that finally you are the one that will be receiving good things for all the good that you have done for others.

I see a celebration with friends. People that you have not seen for a long time. The cards are showing me that it may be a birthday or anniversary of someone that's coming up within the next three months.

However, it does look like a happy occasion that you will be attending. This is the year that you will be around many people, old friends and new friends. As for your husband's chart, it looks as if the two of you may do some traveling this year.

Especially within the first six months of the year. I see that your husband is on some type of medication and that there will be some sort of medication change within the first two months of this year. It will be a good change for him.

I see a sale of property around you or a close loved one around the month of September. Tell your husband to watch his blood pressure around the end of January. Thank you, and have a wonderful year.

Love, Elizabeth

Dear Elizabeth:
I am pleased with your column and response. Would you tell me something regarding a male born Aug. 31, 1933. His employment, health, family and marriage.

Thanks, J.

Dear J.:
The man of whom you speak born Aug. 31, 1933, has been through quite an emotional time with family. However, I don't see things being settled until March 1992.

As far as his health is concerned, I feel that he has to watch his lifting because of lower back problems. He is a very knowledgeable man, and I

Are you over your head in debt?

If opening your credit card statements makes you queasy, it may mean that you have become a victim of your own spending habits.

To find out if your money management habits are putting you on the track to disaster, the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants recommends you ask yourself a few hard questions.

DO YOU PAY OFF CREDIT WITH CREDIT? If you take cash advances on credit cards to meet current bills, you are most likely living beyond your means. Set up a cash flow chart so you can better identify your income and expenses on a monthly basis.

DO YOU CHARGE EVERYTHING? You're flirting with trouble if you reach for a charge card every time you make a purchase. Before using credit, ask yourself if you really need the item, and how much you can afford to pay for it each month.

DO YOU ONLY MAKE MINIMUM CHARGE CARD PAYMENTS? If you only pay the minimum each month and never get close to paying off your credit card balances, the items you've purchased may don't see him having any problems with his employment right now.

However, his love life/marriage has been rocky for the last three years. This man could be a very gifted musician. This year, I see him working with very large corporations. He'll understand by April.

Love, Elizabeth

Dear Elizabeth:
I would like to know if I am going to win the lottery and how long will I be working? I have worked at the hospital for 35 years. Will I retire or get a good sum and quit? I was born June 14, 1945.

Thanks, C

Dear C:
I don't foresee major lottery winnings, however, you are going through a good gambling cycle from February through May.

You are a very psychic lady, especially around your family and loved ones. You are the type of lady who is always trying to help someone else. I am surprised you are finally asking questions for yourself.

I see a retirement coming in late 1992, however, I do not foresee a large sum. Communications will be very important to you this year with people other than the family.

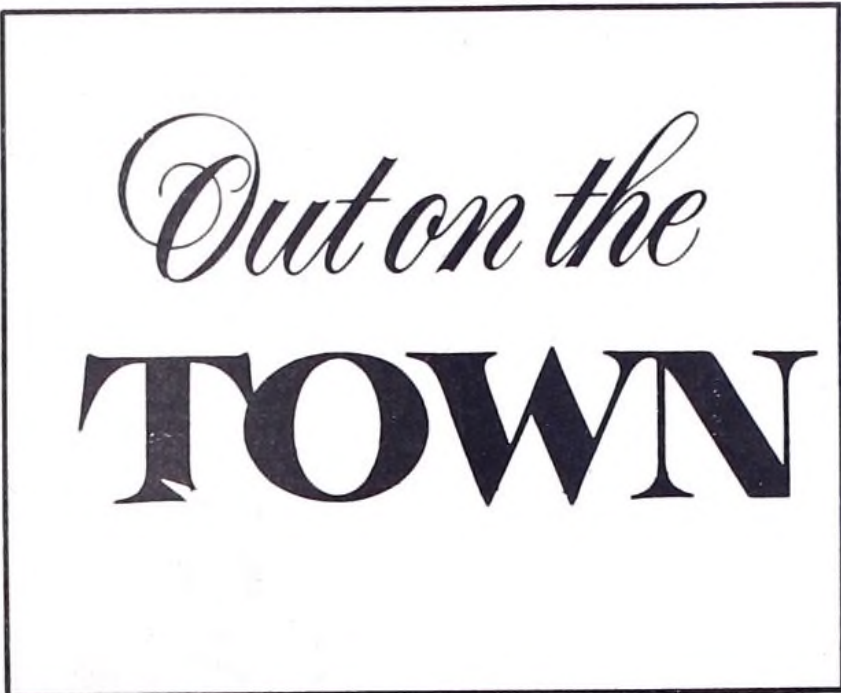

Groups and organizations will be very significant in your life this year. You are going through a very good social cycle. Take advantage of it.

Love, Elizabeth

Winter car care tips offered

Faulty batteries cause the majority of car starting woes, but a few preventive steps beforehand can short-circuit problems, suggest officials at AAA Michigan.

"Last winter, we dispatched service trucks 326,841 times to help motorists with winter car trouble, especially battery related problems," said Gerald Gutowski, AAA Michigan Emergency Road Service Manager. "While battery trouble is the most common culprit in winter, it is also among the easiest problems to prevent."

Today most cars have maintenance-free batteries which don't require regular fluid checks like the older versions, but measures still must be taken to keep the battery in top condition. Car owners should check the following areas before the onslaught of winter, always wearing safety glasses when working with a battery:

- Check battery cables. Frayed cables should be replaced and loose ones tightened.

- Clean corrosion from battery posts and clamps by using a stiff brush and a solution of baking soda and water. To prevent corrosion from returning, smear a light coating of petroleum jelly over the battery posts and connections.

- Watch for cracks and bulges in the battery case and for loose terminal posts.

- Check the level of battery fluid in serviceable batteries. To find out if the battery is the cause of the starting problems, have someone watch the front of the car while the driver starts the engine with the headlights on. If the lights dim when the ignition is turned, chances are the battery is the root of the trouble. If they don't, the problem usually lies elsewhere.

To keep your car from feeling under the weather this winter, officials from AAA Michigan suggest putting it on a "liquid diet."

One of the most important fluids to remember is plenty of gasoline, said Gerald Gutowski, AAA Michigan Emergency Road Service Manager.

"It's vital to keep the gas tank at least half full at all times during the winter months," Gutowski said. "When the tank is less than half full, condensation can occur and possibly result in a fueline freeze and costly repairs."

- Windshield washer solvent. Keep the reservoir filled.

- Antifreeze. A hydrometer should be used to check the strength of antifreeze in the radiator. The proper mix is 50 percent water and 50 percent antifreeze. The mixture should be good for 36 degrees below zero.
